

Audience Psychology

By

Howard Thomas

Contents

Introduction to Part 1

1

Why audience psychology?

2

Hope and fear

3

Personality

Behaviour

4

Enter "Culture"

People and groups

Ritual

Cultural righteousness

The world's two cultures

Perception

5

Beliefs and attitudes

Beliefs and Values

Attitudes

Opinions

6

Emotions

Higher cognitive emotions

Memory

7

Pleasure

What are peoples' needs?

8

Arousal

Seeking novelty

The S-Curve

Threat

Attention

9

Redundancy

Duration of attention span

Uncertainty

10

The drive for pleasure

11

Stereotyping

Stereotyping is inevitable

TV news

Genres

Introduction to Part 2

12

Media entertainment

The Age of Media Entertainment

Cultural industries

Entertainment in history

13

New Media

Do people want interactivity?

Immersion

Other forms

14

Genres

Genres

Television genres

Infotainment and edutainment

15

Drama

Drama and resolution

Disposition

The concept of suspense

16

Rhythm

How rhythm explains suspense

Why do people want suspense?

Involvement

Redundancy

Summary

17

Humour and Comedy

Amusement

Incongruity

Laughter

Comedy and drama

Forms of comedy

Disposition

Disposition toward the victim

Disposition toward the victor

The comic frame of mind

The unfairness doctrine

Problem dissolution

Maliciousness

Popularity of comedy

Mood management theory

18

VMH (Violence, mayhem and horror)

Some definitions

Appeal factors in VMH

Gender differences

Post viewing gratifications

Popularity

Conclusions

- 1 Violent movies test viewers, and consumers are aware of this
- 2 Viewing violence is a social activity
- 3 Anticipation is a key factor in determining response to violence
- 4 Consumer choice influences character relationships
- 5 Thresholds re-affirm social taboos and individual experience
- 6 Viewers use a variety of methods to self-censor violence
- 7 Boundary testing is part of the process of viewing violence
- 8 Real violence is raw and brutal and not entertaining
- 9 Fictional violence is entertaining
- 10 The safety of violent movies

19

Sex

Underlying motivations

Soap sex

Talk show sex

Prime time sex

Appreciation Function of Sexual Content

Beliefs about Sexuality in Society

Beliefs about teens' own sexuality

Behavioural responses to media

MTV Sex

Summary

The effects on viewers

20

Talk

The Theory of Parasocial Interaction

Viewing Motivations

21

Children's Programming

Cognitive development

Early childhood: Ages 2 to 7

Limited information processing capability.

Unclear fantasy-reality distinction

Perceptual boundedness and centration

Failure to understand transformations

Responsiveness to language

Middle childhood: Ages 8 to 12

Appreciation of fantasy-reality distinction

Decentration

Sociocognitive development

Understanding others' emotions

Socio role-taking perspectives

Influence of peer groups

Gender differences

Attraction to scary images and themes

22

Sports

Participation vs. spectatorship

From arena to screen

Pervasiveness of sports programming

The selling out of sports by television.

Theories of spectator enjoyment

Disposition theory of sportsfanship

The Two Laws of Disposition in Sports.

The elements of Sports

Drama in televised sports

Tests in drama in sports.

Violence

Suspense

Novel, risky and effective play

The future of sports

23

Music and Music Videos

Appeal in adolescents and young adults

Ten appeals of music

Content of popular music

Music Videos

MTV Fans

Characteristics of music genres

Punk rock

Hard Rock and Heavy Metal

Rap

Pop and other contemporary

Personality Characteristics of Music Fans by Genre

The Laws of Music Videos

24

Video Games

Cinema and interactive compared

A Feature Comparison of Film Viewing and Video-Game Playing

25

Does audience personality help us?

Extroverts

Introverts

Distribution

Does this help us?

26

The Rules of Entertainment

The Rule of Excitation Transfer

The Rule of Social Comparisons

The Rule of Initial Values.

The Rule of Diminishing Marginal Returns.

Desensitisation

The Rule of Memory Durability

The role of memory

The Rule of Participative Effort Summary

27

Television Quality

The purpose puzzle

Awards

Eyeballs

The box office

Achieving objectives

“Quality programming”

Why the word “quality” has to be avoided

Production values

The role of instinct

Evaluation

28

Weird Genres

Shame TV

As A N Wilson says, “Reality TV is a genre of artificial group masochism.”

Tom Alderman

Reality TV’s 15 Minutes of Fame

Science of Satire

29

Fandom

A

B

C

D

E